

Jonathan Thomas
Drug Free Communities Liaison/ Polk Against Drugs Coordinator

Jonathan Thomas is a native of Cedartown, Georgia. He has a great love of trying new things, playing music, and helping others.

He attended Furman University and Arizona State University on music scholarships for Euphonium and holds a Bachelor's Degree in Music Therapy from ASU. He also holds a degree in Music Education from Jacksonville State University and is currently working towards his Masters in Clinical Mental Health at JSU, where, in 2016, he fulfilled a life goal of being a member of the Marching Southerners.

Jonathan has 13 years of sobriety and hope and after having his spiritual awakening at Still Waters For Men, he was able to share his story and message as a mentor and counselor there for 5 years.

Jonathan is a member of First Methodist Church in Cedartown where he sings in the choir and plays handbells and also began a Blue Christmas program for those struggling during the Christmas Season. He also continues to be active in music, playing trombone with the Atlanta All-Star Band and Celebrity All-Star Band at events throughout the southeast.

Jonathan is the Coordinator of Polk Against Drugs, an organization that aims to reduce drug use in young people and adults as well as support those in recovery through education, collaboration, local policy and community partnerships.
